Lost & Unaccounted for in Iraq - $9 billion of US taxpayers' money and $549.7 million in spare parts shipped in 2004 to US contractors.

Halliburton Overcharges Classified by the Pentagon as Unreasonable and Unsupported - $1.4 billion.

Portion of the $20 billion paid to contractor KBR that Pentagon auditors deem "questionable or supportable" - $3.2 billion

Blackwater is currently being sued by the families of the four contractors killed in Fallujah in March, 2004. Blackwater has refused to supply details of the deaths, and has showed a callous disregard for the safety of its employees.

VOLUNTEER MILITARY?

The newly instituted 'stop loss' policy of the Bush administration holds U.S. soldiers, long after their contract has expired, in Iraq and Afghanistan combat missions.

A "economic draft" has unfairly burdened many of our nation's most vulnerable youth with fighting this war. The vast majority of recruits come from households with a median income less than $50,000.

Hurting Iraq & Its Citizens

POLITICAL REALITY:

Holding provincial elections.

Council on Foreign Relations Adjunct Senior Fellow Vali R. Nasr warns that provincial elections alone will not solve Iraq's political woes. "The idea that elections will produce leaders you want to work with applies if you are working in a peaceful environment," he says. "Unless the insurgents are running for office and come to the polls, it doesn't matter."

Passage of oil revenue-sharing law.

An oil law drafted in February of '07 has left Iraq's leaders bitterly divided. Democratic presidential hopeful Dennis Kucinich (D-OH) says the benchmark as stated in the bill before Congress calls primarily for the privatization of Iraq's oil, not the equal redistribution of revenues.

Spending of reconstruction funds.

One benchmark is the fair distribution across the country's provinces and various ethnic groups of $10 billion in Iraqi reconstruction funds, as allocated in the Iraqi government's budget. "It's hard for the central government to get out of Baghdad and out of the Green Zone and move things ahead," says Frederick D. Barton, co-director of the Center for Strategic and International Studies' post-conflict reconstruction project. He says the easiest way to distribute aid quickly across ethnic lines is to tie it to education or home-improvement funds but that hasn't been done in Iraq.

SPEAK OUT!

Against the Occupation of Iraq Contact Your Congressional Representative

Call the congressional switchboard (202-224-3121) and ask to be connected to your Representative's and Senators' offices.

Peace Action Education Fund contends continued American occupation is only fueling the insurgency and destabilizing Iraqi society. Ongoing military action in Iraq is causing mounting Iraqi casualties each day, alienating potential allies and spurring stronger resentment of the U.S.
